

Innisfree Receives Two Prestigious Challenge Grants Totaling $350,000

We are thrilled to announce that Innisfree has received two significant challenge grants from major Virginia foundations. In late May, we received word from the Robert G. Cabell III and Maude Morgan Cabell Foundation that Innisfree had been awarded a $250,000 challenge grant! We have until June 2020 to raise the matching funds in order to receive this award.

Kenmare and New Laurel Building Campaign Total Project Cost: $2,922,228

At the end of July, the Perry Foundation awarded Innisfree an additional $100,000 challenge grant. Since up to one half of Cabell's challenge may be met through funds from other foundations, your gift toward the Kenmare and New Laurel campaign will actually have three times the impact.

We are so grateful to both the Cabell and Perry Foundations for their support and we ask that you consider making a generous contribution to help us meet these challenges by making your gift or pledge today. ## Spotlight on our Architect

Jeff Bushman of the established, local firm Bushman Dreyfus Architects began working with Innisfree in the summer of 2017 to design the New Laurel and Kenmare homes. Bushman Dreyfus has designed and received accolades for many prominent local projects, including the Jefferson School City Center, The Center at Belvedere (formerly the Senior Center) and the Live Arts Theater Front of House. Our design process involved conversations with community members about their priorities for the new homes, visits to existing homes to evaluate what worked well and held up over the years, and discussions of every detail down to insulation and bathroom fixtures. Jeff will remain involved in overseeing the project throughout construction.
